

TRAFFIC SITUATION IN DIXON PRESENTS PROBLEM

BRENNAN THANKS
ANTI-SALOONERS
FOR ITS ATTACKS

Says It Assures His Election as Senator from Illinois.

Peoria, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Thanking the Anti-Saloon League for focusing its attack on him, George E. Brennan, Democratic candidate for United States senator, today promised Democrats of Bureau, Putnam, Marshall, Stark, Tazewell and Peoria counties that his election will be the death knell for the intolerable conditions under which the country now suffers.

"For the first time in my life," he said, "I feel under obligations to the Anti-Saloon League. I have never approved either its policies or its methods of governing offices."

"Now I find myself and the league in agreement. It declared at its recent state convention that there was only one issue in the coming fall election and that was myself. The league advised its members to pay no attention to the referendum on the question of modification of the Volstead act, told them that it made no difference how the people voted on that question. It declared through its officers that the real referendum was the one afforded by my candidacy for the senate, and it advised all its friends and allies to rally to the support of the candidate opposing me. It renewed the endorsement that it had given that candidate in the primary election and in his previous campaigns in Illinois."

"What the league says is just what I have been insisting upon. I, too, believe my candidacy the real referendum and that any person who advocates the modification of the Volstead act will be throwing away his vote unless he votes for me."

350,000 on Petition

"There is no longer any question as to how Illinois will vote on the proposed amendment which would modify the Volstead act. More than 350,000 voters have petitioned to have placed on the ballot. There never was much question. It was only a few years ago before the state gave a majority of 553,131 in favor of the repeal or modification of the Volstead act. The change of sentiment that has occurred since that time has been all against the act and I candidly believe that the majority for modification this fall will be more than a million."

"But I believe, as the Anti-Saloon league says, which more than 800,000 voters have elected, that nothing unless I am elected. We know where the candidate opposed to me stands. We know that he has had the endorsement of the Anti-Saloon league in every campaign he has waged. We know that he can be trusted to do his bidding for he voted for the Volstead act as a Congressman in July, 1919."

Practical Organization

The Anti-Saloon league would chuckle for modification no matter how great, as long as my opponent is elected. It is a practical organization, always willing to give the shadow for the substance. It has proven that nothing matters to it except its own selfish ends. I don't believe, however, that the Anti-Saloon league will have reason to rejoice. The manner in which the people of the state have flocked to sign the petitions for a referendum on the question of modification or repeal of the Volstead act shows there is a revolution against conditions as they are in progress. I don't believe that the people of the state are going to be fooled into throwing away their votes or nullifying one vote with another."

"I think they see as clearly as the Anti-Saloon league does that my election is necessary to give force to any vote against the Volstead act and ed States Senator, knowing that they that they are going to elect me United States Senator, knowing that my election will be the death knell for the intolerable conditions under which the country now suffers."

Million Spawn in Hatchery Are Lost

Aurora, Ill.—High water caused by heavy rains has washed out the spillway at the state fish hatchery at Yorkville, sweeping about 1,500 parent fish and more than 1,000,000 spawn into the Fox river. About half of them were black bass, and the remainder rock bass, crappies and blue gills. The black bass ranged from two to five pounds and will give excellent fishing when the season opens today.

Dixon Boys Facing Serious Trouble as Result Depredations

Special agents of detectives of the Illinois Central were expected to arrive in Dixon this afternoon to open a campaign against destroyers of railroad property. Many complaints have been made to the offices at Freeport of the willful breaking of insulators on the company's telegraph and telephone system in this city, and it was intimated today that arrests and prosecutions will follow in every case where the miscreants are apprehended. Serious accidents and wrecks are made possible in this manner and it was stated that an immediate stop would be put to the practice, the investigating department, having already secured the names of boys who have been reported as being among the destroyers of the property from the south side depot to the bridge.

Henry Raffenberg, veteran insurance man, is able to be at his office again, after four months confinement to his home with rheumatism.

MINOR BUSINESS
BEFORE COUNTY
FATHERS TODAY

Made Trip of Inspection to County Home and to Have Dinner.

This morning's session of the board of supervisors was of brief duration. Several committees reported on claims to be allowed and shortly after 11 o'clock, adjournment was taken to go in a body to the county home near Eldena for the annual inspection and luncheon.

Chairman William Avery yesterday afternoon appointed John W. Banks of Brooklyn township and E. L. Lott of China township to represent, as delegates, the Lee county Board at the 1926 convention of Supervisors and County Clerks to be held at Geneva in August. The chairman and County Clerk Fred G. Dimick will also be present.

The educational committee presented a recommendation asking for the appropriation of $1,200 annually for the salary of the assistant county superintendent of schools and an additional $100 for traveling expenses, which was adopted.

To Appeal Primary Case

State's Attorney Mark C. Keller was authorized to proceed at once with the perfection of an appeal to the supreme court of the contested primary election case now pending before the three judges of this circuit. A resolution was unanimously adopted by the board instructing the state's attorney to take such steps as are necessary and as soon as possible in placing the case before the supreme court. The action referred to was through the suit and injunction brought by W. J. McAlpine of this city restraining County Clerk Fred G. Dimick from issuing orders and Charles H. Eastman, county treasurer, from paying orders attacking the validity of the April primary election.

A communication which was referred to the road and bridge committee, from the Illinois Northern Utilities company, sought permission to construct electric transmission lines from Dixon to Grand Detour through Lee county, and a second transmission line which will connect Dixon with Belvidere.

Corn is Damaged By Army Worm in Many Places in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., June 16—Army worms have damaged the corn in some counties and there has been replanting according to the weekly weather summary issued today by Clarence J. Root, meteorologist of the U. S. Weather Bureau here.

"Heavy to excessive rains," he said, "occurred throughout the northern and central division during the week. The moisture was much needed, but there has been too much in places, causing local flooding. More than eight inches fell at Rockford."

In the southern division, the precipitation is still inadequate and it is in this division that it is most needed. Some stations report very little rain fall. Corn, oats and pastures have been improved by the rains. "Corn is well cultivated. It was hurt in places by washing, and previously by dust storms. Some winter wheat is in excellent condition, but much of it is rather poor and heading short. Meadows had been hurt by the drought. Farmers are now cutting alfalfa."

ADVERTISING NECESSARY TO SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS, SAYS
DR. B. J. PALMER TO KIWANIS

Unusually Fine Address at Weekly Meeting of Club.

Radio Station WOC was in the air in person at the meeting of the Dixon Kiwanis club at noon yesterday when they entertained Dr. B. J. Palmer, owner of the popular station at Davenport, Iowa. Dr. Palmer arrived here at noon from Chicago, made a very interesting business talk before the club and its guests, and hurried back to Aurora to keep a speaking engagement last evening.

His talk here was well worth the time spent, and was devoted entirely to business principals. In his remarks, which are original and full of punch, the speaker voiced loudly his praise of advertising. This will be gleaned from some of his own original epigrams, which he recited at yesterday's session:

"Successful salesmanship is that which interrupts the eye."
"Samson was the first real salesman. It took two columns to prove it, then he brought the house down."
"Build a better mouse trap than thy neighbor, use printer's ink, and the world will beat a path to your door, even though you live in the heart of the wilderness." (Modern modification of Emerson.)

"The hen is the only living thing that can lay around and produce dividends."

"The paths of the least resistance is what makes rivers and men crooked."

"They say 'has killed more inventions and great ideas in America than any other thing.'"

"Some advertisers insert a one-inch ad in their newspaper in a month, then set back and find fault because everybody in the county did not read it."

"The hen is the real advertiser. She clucks about all day, assisted by her husband, who keeps crowing about the egg that was laid, thus, American people eat hen's eggs for breakfast. The duck lays an egg in a mud puddle, says quack-quack, and that ends it. The duck is no advertiser and the hen is a constant advertiser."

"There is too much kidding the public in the American business life of today. The public is used to this kidding and it will not bring results."

"Nine-tenths of a sale is the confidence between men."

"The average successful business man of today is the man who thinks in the positive and not in the negative."

DEKALB YOUTHS'
CASE NOW BEING HEARD BY JUDGE

Court Hears Evidence Against Confessed Co-ed Assaultants.

BULLETIN

Sycamore, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Two of the three Dekalb County boys being tried for a snuffmill attack upon Dorothy Westervelt, coed at the Northern Illinois State Teachers College, went on the stand today and told their versions of the automobile ride and the assault which occurred the night of April 11.

They denied the girls' charges of brutality and that she struggled against them.

Leonard Rich, 21, was on the stand nearly two hours during the morning. Stanley Hurt, 20, had testified a half hour when court was adjourned at noon. Emerson Wilson, the third of the trio who pleaded guilty last week, will probably testify late today in the defense effort to offer evidence to mitigate the sentence.

Sycamore, Ill., June 16—(AP)—The court room here was crowded at the opening of the hearing which will determine the sentence to be imposed on three young men who pleaded guilty last week to an attack upon Dorothy Westervelt, coed at the Northern Illinois State Teachers College at DeKalb. The three defendants, Leonard Rich, 21, Emerson Wilson, 21 and Stanley Hurt, 20, and their accuser were in court.

Mrs. Lydia Gray, who discovered Miss Westervelt lying unconscious on her doorstep after an automobile ride, the night of April 11, when the attack occurred, identified clothing worn by the girl. She testified that Miss Westervelt was unable to leave her bed during the week she remained at the Gray home after the assault.

Her son, Motorcycle Policeman Dana Gray, told of finding the girl's wrist watch in a coat belonging to Wilson.

Two other witnesses, Mrs. Julia Hensel, dean of women at the college and Dr. J. H. Joost, who attended the coed, stated that they found Miss Westervelt in a hysterical condition, her clothing torn, with bruises and scratches on her face and body.

Judge William J. Fulton heard the evidence to decide upon the sentence, which might be from one year to life imprisonment. The hearing may last throughout the week.

NEW PARKING ORDINANCE IS GIVEN COUNCIL

But It Meets Objections
From Various Quarters There.

A new parking ordinance which has been the subject of some discussion among members of the city council for several weeks past, was presented to the council for action at last evening's session, and brought forth no small amount of discussion. It was discussed both lengthily and loudly at times and finally was permitted to rest until the next meeting of the council when its passage will again be considered. Parking on the east side of Galena avenue was the bone of contention in the proposed new ordinance.

Seven years ago an ordinance was passed forbidding the parking of cars on the east side of Galena avenue from River to Second streets. The proposed new ordinance would modify this somewhat and provide for a ten minute parking on that side of the street. Owners of business on that side of the street maintain that is not sufficient time to permit people to shop. The new ordinance also would provide for a one hour parking limit on Galena avenue from River to Second street and from Ottawa to High and avenue. The merchants claim that the new ordinance would discriminate, in that it permits one hour parking on the west side of Galena avenue and only ten minutes on the east side.

Opinion Divided
Immediately upon the reading of the ordinance, Commissioner George Campbell voiced his objection to that section which limited parking to ten minutes on the east side of Galena avenue. Merchants having places of business on that side of the street were also present and voiced their objections. Members of the council appeared to be divided upon the contents of the ordinance, some favoring the article as presented, others suggested permitting parking on both sides of Galena avenue for a 30 day period to test out the system, while still others were in favor of closing Galena avenue from River to Second streets to parking completely on account of the congestion brought about through the three state highways running through the city on this one narrow street.

When owners of business on Galena avenue protested loudly against the ten minute parking provision, Commissioner Slothover, father of the original ordinance which was passed seven years ago eliminating parking on the east side of the street in question, waxed warm and said:

"If you are going to put the dollar sign ahead of public safety on Galena avenue, then go ahead and take the chance and if an accident occurs, the city will not be responsible. I am going to suggest that cars be permitted to park on both sides of Galena avenue for a period of 30 days, that the commissioner of public health and safety observe the result and then if not satisfactory, adopt this ordinance."

Commissioner Miller responded that he would not consider an amendment to the ordinance which would permit further congestion and the blocking of traffic on Galena avenue, which is a narrow street over which three state highways are routed, but added that he would consider the clearing of both sides of the street of all parking. With this announcement, the ordinance was tabled until next week.

Want Fargo Ave. Bridge
A petition was presented to the council by property owners residing on Fargo avenue, asking that a bridge or culvert be constructed over a ditch and Postmaster John E. Moyer was present and addressed the council in favor of the improvement, stating that one of the rural carriers experienced great difficulty in serving his patrons in this section. The condition is to be investigated and reported upon at another meeting.

The board of local improvements held a short but interesting session following the council meeting. A resolution was presented originating a scheme under local improvement ordinance, No. 229 providing for the construction of concrete or Warren its paving on East Fellows street. Chicago, Aurora, Elgin

Chicago, June 16—(AP)—The Chicago, Aurora & Elgin Railroad asked the state Commerce Commission today to authorize a 15 percent fare increase. The new rates would approximate those of the steam railways serving the same territory, although commutation rates would be lower. Heavy wage increases, rising costs of materials and operating expenses and a new development program make necessary a higher tariff, President Britten I. Budd said.

ROCKFORD BEGINS TO DIG OUT FROM MUD OF BIG FLOOD

Relief Fund is Started to Relieve Suffering Citizens.

Rockford, June 16—Faced with the greatest property catastrophe in the history of the city, Rockford began to dig itself out from the mud and slime of Sunday's flood today and to take steps to relieve the suffering and losses of families who were the greatest sufferers in Sunday's cloud-burst and flood.

Mayor J. Herman Hallstrom today set in motion relief machinery aimed in relief of the suffering of the city that is expected to reach very low ebb here and to raise perhaps thousands of dollars for the flood victims.

At a meeting this morning in the drug store of Ald. Henry Bloom on Seventh St., near the heart of the Sixth-ave. flood devastated district the relief plans were laid.

A special committee headed by Ald. William Shimmin, head of the city council finance committee, and composed of Ald. Charles Kjelstrom and Assistant City Building Inspector Arthur Carlson to survey the storm damages to homes in the flooded district and to administer relief funds when they are collected to the most needy cases.

Liddell Treasurer
City Attorney George Liddell was named secretary and treasurer of this relief committee.

Under the leadership of Ald. Shimmin the work of surveying the damage was started at 1 p. m. this afternoon when members of the committee began a tour of the Keith creek flood district along Sixth ave. from Ninth street east toward the city limits.

At the meeting this morning Mayor or Hallstrom designated all Rockford banks, newspapers and Chamber of Commerce as collection agencies for the big relief fund which promises to be one of the greatest emergency funds ever raised in the city.

DRASTIC TACTICS
ADOPTED BY SEN-ATE COMMITTEE

Grilling Examination of Witnesses in Penna.
Campaign Hearing.

Washington, June 16—(AP)—Political lieutenants of William S. Vare in his successful campaign for the republican senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania were jolted along a nerve-racking road of cross examination today, as the senate campaign funds committee pursued its quest for the inside story of the keystone state's $2,000,000 primary.

Senator Reed of Missouri, the committee chairman, conducted the questioning. Almost without a let-up during the two hour session, he prodded toward the inner workings of the Vare organizations, its sources of revenue and its methods of battle and in particular its operations in the Vare stronghold in the first twenty wards of Philadelphia.

Carried Step by Step
Harry A. Mackey, field marshal of the organization in the recent primary campaign, was taken step by step through these wards where in some precincts Vare polled more than 100 votes to one over the combined strength of his two opponents, Gov. Pinchot and Senator Pepper. The witness said he could not account for variations in comparative strength shown in some of these wards, but he maintained that the voting had been according to the rules of the game and protested that the stuffing of ballot boxes would have been impossible even if someone had wanted to do it.

Witness is Surprised
Another witness, Joseph N. Mackrell, of the Pittsburgh end of the Vare campaign, was given a surprise grilling about a long distance telephone conversation in which he had indulged in before the committee met.

Replying to Reed, he said he was talking to Albert Cooper at Harrisburg about measures to prevent political reprisals against those who supported the defeated Vare candidate for governor. Asked what he meant when he said over the telephone, "I understand nothing from nobody," he declared repeatedly that he could not recall that anything "important" of that kind was said.

When Mackey took the stand, the committee chairman warned him to "stick to the questions," when he replied to questions.

At one point, Reed said the returns demonstrated that the votes were not "counted at all but merely turned," but Mackey disputed that proposition.

Adverting to the charges of Benjamin H. Renshaw, a municipal judge that there was corruption in the Philadelphia election last fall, Reed asked if it were not a fact that one box was opened and no votes found. "Not at all," said Mackey. "You've got the wrong end of the state. I heard that happened in Pittsburgh."

Drawn by the rapid questioning of Reed into a detailed description of how the Vare organization operated, Mackey said the ward leader who did not know each voter in his ward was inefficient.

Hasn't your organization furnished counsel for bootlegging?" he was asked.

"Never."

"Illegal possession of liquor?"

"Yes, I've pleaded for old ladies arrested for having a pint in their possession."

"Where do you get the money to pay these lawyers?"

"Every ward leader has some aspirin, some young lawyers who serve free."

"You use influence to get 'em off before it comes to trial?"

"No sir."

The crowd of spectators roared when Reed had Mackey repeat a statement made in his testimony yesterday that "I never heard of a vote being bought in Pennsylvania."

Reed reminded the witness that he had heard it said one way of buying votes was to hire watchers, but Mackey said he did not believe that constituted the buying of votes.

Peaches Promise Record
Crop, Govt. Bureau Says

Chicago, June 16—(AP)—Peaches are promising the largest production this season since the great crop in 1915. The government bureau of agricultural economics today reported that the estimated yield in sight is $9,000,000 and increase of $2,000,000 bushels over last year. One fourth to one half greater output of peaches in the middle states is looked for and in many parts of the southeast, as well as a heavy crop in the far west. Enlarged production of other fruit is likewise expected.

Opera, "Carmen," Pleased at Theatre

Under the capable direction of Mme. Hess-Burr last evening at the Dixon Theatre a most pleasing version of Bizet's opera, Carmen, was given. Hearty applause spontaneously given voiced the approval of the audience.

The opera was well given, with all details beautifully worked out. The singers displayed careful training and good dramatic expression. The opera revealed many beautiful voices in the chorus as well as in the principal parts. The costumes were beautiful and appropriate, and the stage settings, especially the campfire scene at the smugglers' camp were realistic.

Mrs. Lester Wilhelm as Carmen was charming, acting the part of the fascinating little vixen with spirit and grace, her strong lovely voice showing to excellent advantage. Her dramatic expression drew many favorable comments. Her last duet with Jose at the Inn was exceptionally well done.

Mrs. Wilson Dysart, who sang Michaela and Frasquita, also gave a beautiful interpretation of the parts, her several solos being listened to with delight and her duet with Jose in the first act being especially enjoyable.

Don Jose, depicted by Paul Ocheltree gave much pleasure to his listeners. Mr. Ocheltree possessing a sweet tenor voice. The acting in the difficult part of Jose was highly praised.

LeRoy Schoenig as Escamillo pleased all. His deep, widely ranged voice exhibited excellent training. The Toreador song with the chorus, was most enjoyable.

Mercedes was the part gracefully taken by Miss Clara Stager, and her sweet voice and her natural and graceful demeanor won much praise.

Miss Frances Campbell as the gypsy dancer gave two lovely gypsy dances. William Worley was the capable organist, with Mme. Burr at the piano.

The opera was a success and many praises are heard today on all sides. The program follows:

Jose is imprisoned for neglect of duty but when released follows the gypsy girl, Carmen, to Pastia's Inn.

In the mean while Carmen carries on a flirtation with Escamillo, a toreador.

Having deserted the army, Jose joins the band of smugglers of which Carmen is leader.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Daughter Orates

"My mother from a Child's Viewpoint" was the subject given 12-year-old Ellen Elizabeth Benson, world's brightest child, on which to speak before a metropolitan Business and Professional Women's Club. A bully idea, this. If more children were encouraged to "rise right up in meetin'" and tell what they think of their parents, that profession might be greatly reformed. As is, children have never been trained to endure in silence, and grow bitter and rebellious inside at injustices of parents.

More on Summer Reading

Today I promised a list of "meatier" summer books than those given yesterday—the books you "ought to read," the books that will improve your mind, give your club conversation food—well—

Try "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," by Dorsey; "New Decalog of Science," by Wiggin; "Our Times," by Mark Sullivan; "The Mauve Decade," by Thomas Beer; "Microbe Hunters," by Paul de Kruif; "The Voyage of the Arcturion," by Beebe; "Some Washington Ladies," by Meade Minnegerode; Carl Sandburg's "The Prairie Years"; "Memories," by Dame Melba; "Book on Marriage," by Count Kreyslering.

The Scarf's Thing

It all depends on how the scarf is tied this year. The same old scarf of yesteryear which flew airily 'neath the coat, may become a modish thing of beauty if tied into a stock effect, a four-in-hand, or a soft and jaunty book at the side. Even the old Deauville scarf manner of wearing it swaggerishly a la bandana is seen on sport frocks.

Wages and Paps

Papa should be given a higher wage than the man without children, according to Professor Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago. He believes that married men with children are underpaid today and that bachelors and married men without children are being overpaid. This would mean a wage slash for most workers, as only 32 per cent of them are workers with children. Make your own comment.

I would opine that this would work for the glorification of parenthood only and the ignoring of human functions which contribute fully as much or more to the movement of the race. Count up our bachelor public servants who, penalized for lack of children by low incomes, would have been deprived the opportunity of education and leisure permitting them to perfect their art or business and thus contribute to the world. A kid or so is nice. But so is a great book or painting or law.

Hair Bleach

Many a brunette has startled her friends who said goodnight to her, by saying goodmorning to them as a gorgeous red-gold blonde. The answer is "peroxide bleach." One can always be spotted. Take it two ways. But a combination of equal quantity of peroxide and ammonia can bleach out superfluous hair, making it almost unnoticeable.

Her Boy

"My boy is handy with tools, and his father and I think that if we let him learn right he might do good things along designing lines. Do you know of any book told in child's language that would interest him in furniture making?"

I do! "Carpentry for Beginners," by Adams; "Makers of Many Things," by Tappan; "When Mother Lets Us Carpenter," by Adams.

Light Menus

For a table party menu, any of these combinations work as well as the w. k. ham and eggs or pork and beans. Tomato rabbit, saltines, pickles; coffee; baked beans, Boston brown bread, olives, cheese, crackers, coffee; shrimp salad, saltines, salted nuts, potato chips, sweet pickles, coffee.

ETHEL:

How to Keep a Husband

with summer daintiness. The mode that demanded dark serge suits and silk dresses for street and office wear even on the warmest days, is passe now, along with many other unsanitary and stupid modes in dress.

The best taste cannot cavil at light clothing on the street, so long as it is plainly made and of suitable material. The most successful business dresses this year are of tub silk in many delightful stripes, repeating the colors of the band on the Panama hat or the small felt cloche.

Dark silks that cannot be tubbed are not only unhealthful and uncomfortable for the wearer, they are a crime against those who have to look at them. A perspiring, black-clad woman entering a street car can make the entire carful of passengers feel warmer and wearier.

But the woman who steps from her cold tub into freshly laundered lingerie and a simple, light tub silk dress, who dusts her powder on carefully and not too thickly, and who dispenses with excessive makeup which will smear as the day grows hotter, is a delight to the eyes of the passerby.

Not only does she look dainty and cool—but she has a much better chance of feeling comfortable as well.

VISITED IN DIXON OVER WEEK-END

Mrs. Mary Riordan, Miss Helen Cahill and Miss Agnes Tague returned to DeKalb after spending the week-end at their respective homes. Miss Tague is an instructor in Mathematics in the DeKalb State Teachers College.

BY CYNTHIA GREY

As summer advances, soap and water and laundry bills will assume higher importance in feminine minds. For summer is undoubtedly the dainty woman's greatest ordeal.

It threatens the cool predation of her toilet—with attacks upon the crispness of her collars, the waves of her hair, the velvet of her skin. If

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

PORCH CHAIRS

NEW—cheery—refreshing. Chairs in all styles and finishes that give promise of comfort and pleasure. Reed, fibre, wicker or plain and painted woods. Some are brightly cushioned.

The house, no matter how well ventilated, feels close, stuffy and oppressive these warm days.

It's a relief to get out-of-doors and porches prove a haven of refuge. Especially is this true if the porch is screened with porch shades and is made attractive and restful with a few pieces of suitable furniture and porch rugs.

And this is so easy to do. Here among our large assortment of Porch Furniture are any number of inexpensive pieces, one or more of which will add wonderfully to the cool Summer Porch, and make it an inviting retreat.

OF OLD MEN—

I love to sit with old men
Who never speak a word;
But seem to hear the silences
That I have never heard.

They sit and look with quiet eyes
As from an evening hill
That overlooks a valley which
The distance has struck still.

I love to sit with old men
Who never say a word;
I find I rise the quieter
For silences I've heard.

W. R. C. Activities Are Recorded

Members of Dixon Relief Corps No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic attended the Flag Day services of Dixon Lodge of Elks on Monday evening, June 14th. ## NOTABLE WHITE HOUSE WEDDING.

In its of forty years ago the Kansas City Star reprints the following as of the date of June 3, 1886:

"President Grover Cleveland and Miss Frances Folsom were quietly married late yesterday afternoon in the blue room, at the white house, in the presence of a small gathering which included only a few relatives, intimate friends and some of the members of the cabinet and their wives. Rev. Dr. Sunderland was the officiating minister, assisted by the Rev. William Cleveland, the president's brother. The honeymoon will be spent at Deer Park, Md.

"Other weddings there have been at the white house—eight in all—but never before has the highest dignity in the land bowed his head within its historic walls to receive the blessings of the church on his union in the holy bonds of matrimony.

"There was no quaver in Miss Folsom's voice when she said 'I do.' Do you, Frank, take this man, etc.? Of course she does, and if she is the appreciative, far-seeing young woman we take her to be she is delighted with the opportunity. For as (perhaps?) Owen Meredith may have said: 'The world is filled with folly and sin, and love must cling where it can, I say; for beauty is easy enough to win, but one doesn't catch on to a president of the United States every day,' or words to that effect."

Miss Folsom's father had been a law partner of Cleveland in Buffalo. The wedding took place in the first Cleveland term and the Cleveland family returned to the white house in 1893, the four years of the administration of Harrison intervening.

Upon retirement Grover Cleveland moved to Princeton, N. J., and there he delivered a series of lectures at the university.

As one of the townspeople Mrs. Cleveland became a beloved citizen. Particularly was she popular with the student body. Cleveland died in 1908 and on Feb. 10, 1913, she married Thomas J. Preston, a professor in the university. She still resides at Princeton and now is 61 years of age.

It is related in the Star article that at the time of the Cleveland wedding there had been eight ceremonies in the white house. There have been several others since. The wedding of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth took place at the white house in 1906. In the administration of President Wilson several marriages took place, the president and two of his daughters all being principals in ceremonies.

TO NEW WORLDS?

Pity and grief for today's citizen so flooded the heart of the National Association of Publishers that it recently issued this deliverance to us who find "the world too much with us."

"Time was when the restlessness and hunger for adventure could easily be quelled," they said. "In the middle ages the adventurous spirit joined a band of mercenary soldiers. He wandered off alone to China, as Marco Polo wandered. He even sailed with Christopher Columbus on the most adventurous voyage that ever was made.

"A little later the man who sought adventure had his chance to turn pirate, and roved the Spanish Main with Morgan or Drake. There was even a time, not so long ago, when the unknown heart of Africa offered a fine escape into wild adventure.

"But these time are fled. Most of us live in cities now. In the evening we sit at home before a gas-log or a radiator, surrounded by comforts, lazily accepting them. There are no new worlds to discover. Africa is no longer a black mystery. There are too many people in a world that is too civilized.

"The tragedy is that the character of man has not altered to keep pace with his environment. The longing for adventure is still alive and there remain so few ways of satisfying it."

That's right, gentlemen, but if any adventure so challenged the hearts and quickened the spirits of those men of yore as today's challenging adventure of digging out the shekels wherewith to pay the butcher and baker and radio man, we wonder what it was

Even though this country spends $90,000,000 a year on chewing gum, some movie seats have none on them.

A Chicago girl of 17 has three husbands, while many girls twice her age haven't more than one or two.

In Los Angeles, a girl wants $10,000 because he kissed her once. Retail prices are too high.

A man can help his wife clean house by getting out of the way and staying out until she finishes.

Being short of cash is a great discomfort. You find it so hard to impress people with your wisdom then.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE HOUSE WITH SEVEN POINTED TOWERS

The Dream-Maker Man had a spy glass and was looking out of one of his star-shaped windows

When the Twins reached Misty Hill in Droway Land, they knew just what to look for. The Fairy Queen's letter had said, "The Dream-Maker Man lives in a castle with seven pointed towers."

There it was right on top of the hill, its seven towers painted seven different colors, and all its windows shaped like stars.

The track disappeared, also the little car they had traveled in. There they stood all alone at the foot of the hill.

"How do we get up?" asked Nancy. "There isn't a path or anything."

Nick looked around. "I don't know," he said. "I suppose we have to walk."

But just then there was a buzzing sound like a great bee, and what should the Twins see but an airplane leaving the castle on top of the hill!

It flew down and landed right beside them and a jolly aviator got out and shook hands.

"Are you the Dream-Maker man?" asked Nick. "We're looking for him. We'd like to know if our china elephant and toy clown came to the moon. The Fairy Queen told us to come here."

"Right!" said the jolly aviator. "No, I'm not the Dream-Maker Man."

"I'm his son, Snore. There are three of us. Snoodle and Snuggles and Snore. We do errands for our father, the Dream-Maker Man, in our airplanes. We used to use mares—night mares—but they are all out of style now."

"Snoodle and Snuggles and Snore!"

cried Nick. "Why, that was the name of the little moon man who opened the blue gate for us when we arrived on the moon."

"Right!" said Snore, again. "Right!" Snoodle and Snuggles were glad to hear that. But if you wish to go to the castle on top of the hill, get into my airplane and I'll take you there. There is no path because thieves would come up and steal the dreams Father makes."

So Nancy and Nick got into the airplane and Snore got into the front seat and away they went right up the hill toward the castle with seven towers.

The Dream-Maker Man had a spy glass and was looking out of one of his star-shaped windows. He had seen everything that went on.

As the Twins approached he waved a green handkerchief to show how glad he was to see them.

The airplane settled down on a wide porch, and they all got out.

In half a minute, there was the Dream-Maker Man himself, shaking hands with them, also his other two sons, Snoodle and Snuggles.

"So you came all the way to Misty Hill?" said the Dream-Maker Man when Nick had told him his story.

"Yes, sir," said Nick.

"That was right! That was right!" said their host. "The moon is full of queer countries and queer cities. You could never find Inco and Fiops without my help. I'll do what I can."

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

UNGENEROUS SUSPICIONS

"I expect Judy, you're going to dinner with J. D. Robinson," Jerry exclaimed viciously. "I must say you work quickly."

In a moment I was quite as angry as he. Jerry Hathaway had no business to have such ungenerous suspicions.

"You have no right to expect anything," I said furiously. "You are no my keeper or my husband."

"No, I'm not. But I have been fool enough to think that I might be your sweetheart. Dad told me just a little while ago that you were too clever for me; that you would throw me over for Robinson in a minute if you found that he could help you along toward your ambition faster than I. Dad said you were a girl whose head would always overrule her heart."

"I don't care a continental damn what your dad says. He is a vicious old man and I'll tell him so the next time I see him. In the meantime you can tell him for me that I have cut another notch in the stick which I am keeping as a reminder of what I owe him. You may put me down here, Jerry. I'm not going to ride with you another block. I'll walk the rest of the way to the Congress hotel."

Without another word Jerry drove up to the curb and I got out.

As he was starting the car I turned and said: "If it will give you any satisfaction I'll tell you as well as the rest of the world that I'm not going to dine with Mr. Robinson tonight."

I walked away as swiftly as possible.

"Judy, oh Judy," called Jerry.

I didn't turn my head, but I smiled a little as I remembered how many times I had gotten out of automobiles and walked away from them because I didn't like my company. "Well, this is somewhat better," I said to myself as I went toward the Congress rather triumphantly. "Than my last walk of this kind." Then I had trudged through the rain to my father's house to get away from the obnoxious petting of Chuck Becker. Tonight I left Jerry because he was jealous of me.

What a long time it seemed since that night my father raised the roof over the Becker episode. The little country town with its gossip, pint pot judgments and narrow standards had passed out of my life. The last letter I had had from my mother had been filled with what she had fondly termed "the news" about people in whom I had no possible interest. I had found that some of them I did not even remember.

Was I happier now than I was then?

TOMORROW: What Is Love?

THE VERY IDEA

by Hal Cochran

PEACE OF MIND

When I pass on, and say good-by—in plainer language, when I die—I wonder what the folk will say—that is, the folk I know today.

We all, no doubt, have had that thought and, in the spirit of it caught have pondered o'er our honest worth to self and others on this earth.

It's nice to think—and then not mind, whatever fault you think they'll find. For if you've played the life game fair, you know, at least, you've done your share.

And yet there is a peace of mind, in knowing thoughts of you are kind. The man who lives and spreads the smile, makes friends who make it all worth while.

Money may talk—but it isn't on speaking terms with a lot of people.

There is no necessity of a married woman buying a book of fairy tales, to get them first hand.

Some women find fault if their husbands don't speak to them, and at the same time complain if they are interrupted.

There was a bully in our town, And he was wondrous wise. The only guys he picked upon Were just 'bout half his size.

A woman goes to the country and leaves her husband at home—and they both get a good rest.

Ocean travel shouldn't upset a doctor, when he's used to see sickness.

We all admire the man who says the right thing at the right moment—especially when we're thirsty.

ANY MORE WARS?

Washington.—If there are any more wars around, Robert Henry Livingstone, alias Matt Greene, wants to be declared in. Livingstone, who says he is 106, says he enlisted under General Taylor for the Mexican campaign of '46 against Santa Anna, was with Commodore Perry when he opened the gates of Japan in '52; served under General Scott in '56 against Mexico; fought with Custer in his Indian campaigns; fought under Roosevelt in the Spanish-American War, and helped General Pershing win the World War.

BULLET RIDDEN HORSE WAS ONLY CUSTER SURVIVOR

Was Found Wandering on Prairie After That
Annihilation.

Denver—Few military engagements in the history of the United States ever brought forward so many claimants to being the "sole survivor" as the Battle of the Little Big Horn, June 25, 1876, the semi-centennial of which will be observed this month at Custer Battlefield.

While the disaster that befell the five companies of the Seventh cavalry was in no sense a massacre—every trooper fighting to the last ditch—it was an annihilation from which not one man escaped to tell the story of the battle.

Yet there was a "sole survivor". It was "Commanche", the claybank gelding mount of Capt. Miles W. Keogh.

Was Wounded Early
When he was five years old, the government purchased Commanche and assigned him to Company I of the Seventh cavalry, then stationed at Ellis, Kansas. Capt. Keogh, acting inspector general on Gen. Sully's staff when an expedition was organized against southern Indians at Fort Dodge in 1868, chose the animal. During one of the engagements with Commanche Indians, the horse was wounded while Keogh was riding him. From that time hence the animal was known as Commanche.

It was Commanche on which Keogh was mounted that fateful June 25 when Custer made his last charge into the great Indian village on the Little Big Horn.

Two days later, while General Terry's men were performing the last rites for their dead comrades, a field quartermaster found Commanche, riddled with bullets, wandering about the battlefield. The humane thing appeared to be to put the animal out of its misery, yet the soldiers leaped at a chance to save one life—man or beast—from among the still forms that dotter the plains.

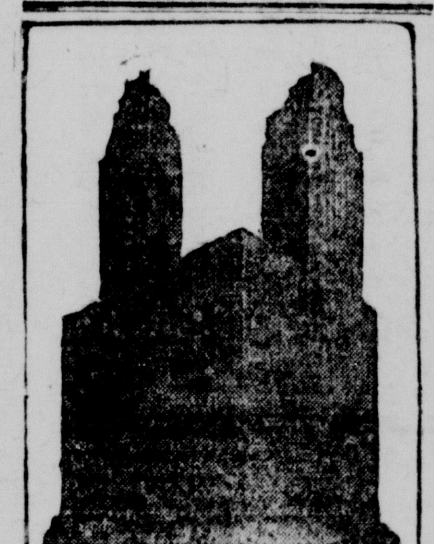

Became Comfort of Post.

Commanche's wounds were dressed with the same care that would have been shown one of the gallant troopers. The half-bred animal was conveyed to the steamer "Far West", at the junction of the Little and Big Horn rivers where a comfortable stall was built to make his trip as painless as possible into Bismark, N. Dak. From there he was taken to Fort Lincoln, the post from which Custer and his command had started on their last expedition. Here, under the tender ministrations of surgeons, Commanche recovered, and his treatment and comfort thereafter was the solicitude of the Post.

While many stories have been told of how the horse was a favorite saddle among the ladies of the post after his wounds had healed, a general order, issued by Colonel Sturgis, would indicate that Commanche never was ridden after the Custer battle. That section said: "The commanding officer of Company I, will see that a special and comfortable stall is fitted up for him, and he will not again be ridden by any person whatsoever, under any circumstance, nor will he ever be put to any kind of work."

When the Seventh was ordered to Fort Riley, battle-scarred Commanche was taken along. Until 1892, when at the age of twenty-eight years Commanche died, he was given tender and loving care.

MARKET SEASON OF BIG LEAGUES CLOSED TUESDAY

No More Deals Can Be Made Until August 31
Under Rules.

New York, June 16—(AP)—The major league player market is closed until August 31.

In the last rush a few deals were made public, but the major transaction did not come from the New York Giants; it was engineered by none other than that slim veteran who has become a part of Philadelphia baseball benches—Connie Mack.

Mack's first move was to obtain "Babe" Delaney from the St. Louis Browns for Edna "Big" Miller, both players being outfielders. Then he shifted Jacobson and Pitcher Bryan Harris and Fred Heimach, right hander and southpaw respectively, for Pitcher Howard Ehmke of Boston, formerly of the Detroit round staff.

At the same time the New York Yankees gained the services of a much desired left hand pinch hitter in Roy Carlyle through waivers from Boston.

Giant Make Trades

Manager McGraw of the Giants announced the signing of the college pitcher, Al Smith, and the college outfielder, Joe Connell, both of Villa Nova. Cather James Boyle, from St. Xavier's College, Cincinnati, also reported to the Giants. The previous day, McGraw exchanged outfielder Billy Southworth for Heinie Mueller, St. Louis Cardinal gardner.

Brooklyn has signed Jim Silver, former Notre Dame catcher and captain who used to catch Owen Carroll, formerly with Detroit and now with Toronto, when they were in preparatory school in Newark, N. J.

Washington announced the purchase of the Cuban left hander, Emilio Palmero, from Columbus of the American Association, while Cleveland released Pitcher Ace Weldon of Terre Haute and placed Catcher Chick Autrey and Pitcher Carl Yowell, now ill on the retired list.

Sidelights

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Guiley, White Sox utility outfielder, has been released to the Shreveport, Texas League club under option.

Gorham Leverette, pitcher, has been sent to the Portland, Pacific Coast League club by the Chicago White Sox, under option.

Manager Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox will be presented with a diploma on Saturday, June 19, designating him as the most valuable player to his club. The presentation will be made by Mayor Dever of Chicago. Collins' award is a result of his work while a member of the Athletics in 1914, when he was presented with an automobile. Since that time, the league has voted to give the most valuable player each year a diploma. This Speaker of the Indians and Ty Cobb of the Tigers also were voted diplomas by the league.

Outfielder Joe Connell and Pitcher Al Smith of Villa Nova College have been signed by the New York Giants. Catcher James Boyle, formerly of St.

Xavier's College of Cincinnati, and a brother of Pack Boyle, who caught for the Browns and other major league clubs, also reported to Manager McGraw.

Billy Southworth, former Giant outfielder, made his debut in a St. Louis uniform against the Robins and struck out in his first two appearances at the plate. He managed to crack out a single in the eighth inning, however.

"Lefty" Walberg's pitching and effective support was too much for the Indians who suffered a shutout at the hands of the Athletics. The defeat placed the Speaker tribe from second to fourth place.

Outfielder Lee of the Indians who has not donned a mask in six years took up the catching duties for the Cleveland club in the final inning because of an accident to Catcher Myer who has been on the receiving end of a bat. He handled himself like a fellow every day.

Patrick Cardinal O'Donnell, prime minister of Ireland, who is on his way to Chicago to attend the Eucharistic Congress, went out to the Polo Grounds and saw the Giants nose out the Reds in a close game.

Delaney and Sage to Meet in Detroit Ring

Detroit, June 16—(AP)—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, knocker-out, and Bob Sage, Detroit's battling barrister, whose gloves paid his way to a law degree from the University of Detroit, will fight ten rounds to a decision at Detroit tonight. Delaney will have a weight advantage of eight pounds. The match has aroused more than local interest in this section of Michigan.

LINES TIGHTENED IN NATIONAL IN TUESDAY GAMES

Three and Half Games Between First and Sixth Places.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lines in the National League have been drawn much tighter in the last 24 hours and today only three and one-half games separate the Cincinnati Reds in first position and the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, tied for sixth.

While second place Pittsburgh was rained out in Boston yesterday, the Giants took their third straight contest from the leaders, 3-2. Jimmy Ring permitting the Red Legs only three hits in seven innings, when Heinie Mueller, just obtained from the Cardinals, hit for him and singled across the tying run. Kent Greenfield then pitched hitless ball for two frames, while his mates tallied the winning point on Young's single. Lindstrom's double and Kelly's sacrifice fly.

Dizzy Vance struck out nine St. Louis Cardinals in seven innings at Brooklyn, but lost the game, 4-0, because Bill Sherdel allowed only five safeties.

Cubs Smothered.

The Phillies received some good pitching to support their ever-dangerous bats and smothered the Chicago Cubs, 8-1. Heinie Sand shooting out a double and two singles for a perfect day at the plate.

Miller Huggins' Ruthless Yankees—the Bambino is resting after twisting a knee while pursuing two-base hits—caused the uprising St. Louis Browns to halt, Urban Shocker beating them, 6-1, for the only Yankee victory of the series. In the absence of Ruth, Tony Lazzeri did the home run honors.

Walberg arose to the occasion for Philadelphia and his 5-0 victory sent the Cleveland Indians hurtling into fourth place. Engle, the Athletics' recruit shortfielder, started three double plays and was in the middle of a fourth. Bill Lamar registered a home run and two singles.

Urban Faber opposed Stan Coveleski at Chicago and the White Sox won, 4-1, with the seagull topped person granting only five hits. The only Senate scoring came from a four base blow delivered by Sam Rice.

Ty Cobb's Detroit machine worked smoothly in the ninth, scoring three 7-6. A walk to Warner, triples to runs to down the Boston Red Sox. Hellmann and Tavenner and a single by Fothergill accounted for the ninth inning scores.

NEW STAR FOUND.

Cambridge, Mass.—A new star has been discovered, ten million times brighter than the sun. But its light is of the 14th magnitude, 4000 times too faint to be seen with the naked eye. Scientists figure that the catastrophe which gave birth to this new star happened ten million years ago, long before the glacial period on earth.

PAPERED WITH GOLD.

Winnipeg, Man.—Billy Stokes was a speculator in the 1914 oil boom in Calgary, Alberta. After the last boom he found himself with a lot of worthless certificates. He papered a room with them. Recently the stock took a jump, and Stokes bought heavy locks and bars for the two rooms. He is seeking the paper off. One of the certificates brought $1000.

Rockford's Fine Looking Streets Paved With Concrete

Tourists who have motored through the beautiful country around Rockford, Illinois, know that the city is a delightful place.

Rockford is especially proud of its streets, the finest of which are paved with portland cement concrete.

Some of these are in the down-town business district; others are in the residential sections, where concrete is considered the aristocrat of pavements.

Wealthy home owners, as well as those to whom lasting economy is the first consideration, petition for concrete pavement in preference to any other type.

They prefer concrete paving because its pleasing, light gray surface sets off their stately residences and broad green lawns, and also harmonizes with the curb, walks and in-drives, which are invariably of concrete.

And Rockford has found, through twelve years of happy experience, that the in-built ruggedness of concrete paving makes it withstand indefinitely every requirement of modern traffic.

Rockford is building more concrete streets every year, and to date has a total of 427,424 square yards.

Concrete streets are a sound investment for any town or city.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

ART EXHIBITION AT EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS GREAT

Unusual Display of Archaeological Work at Chicago Congress.

Chicago, June 16.—(AP)—Works of ecclesiastical art dating back to the fifth century and including several paintings by such masters as Leonardo Da Vinci, Raphael, Guido Reni and Van Dyck, are among several hundred exhibits in the Eucharistic Congress exposition, which opens today on Chicago's famous mile-long Municipal Pier.

Rare wood carvings, paintings and sculpture from famous European cathedrals are on display, with period exhibits depicting the progress of church architecture, a priceless collection of historical material, and many specimens of contemporary art.

In addition the Art Institute of Chicago and the Field Museum have arranged special exhibits of archaeological material for the Eucharistic Congress, the vanguard of whom are now arriving here. Official opening of the Congress is set for Sunday. It will continue through Thursday.

St. Patrick's Shrines
The reproductions of four shrines of St. Patrick are among the Field Museum display of historic relics of Ireland. At the Art Institute a life sized Spanish crucifix, recognized as one of the world's finest specimens of medieval craftsmanship, is on display.

At the Municipal Pier an illuminated seventh century manuscript of St. Patrick is present for examination. Among forty paintings loaned by the Rt. Rev. Schmid De Gruneh, bishop of Chur, Switzerland, are a Madonna and Child by Leonardo Da Vinci, and a Holy family by Raphael. American Madonnas are exhibited, perhaps for the first time in history, in canvases of Sister Stanisla of the Sisters of Notre Dame, Chicago.

Among the church relics are a hand-wrought silver ciborium of the seventeenth century and a set of stations of the cross in polychrome wood carving from the Austrian Tyrol.

From New Cathedral
Prominent among the exhibits in modern church architecture are a number of decorative terra cotta frescoes from the new cathedral in St. Louis, which is to be dedicated, after the Congress, by Cardinal Du Bois, archbishop of Paris.

One of the purposes of the exhibit, according to Thomas A. O'Shaughnessy, chairman of the committee in charge, is to "combat some of the bolshevist tendencies" in contemporary art and "to counteract the voluptuous-materialism increasingly manifested by artists."

"The exposition will also serve, we hope, to draw the minds of the artists to religion as a theme for their creations," he said, "and prove the church as an institution which can make admirable use of artistic productions."

Bicycles Nearly Ruined Our Young People

BY TOM SIMS

Once upon a time there was a widespread fear that bicycles were going to be the ruin of the young.

This was back when the new models, as shown in the picture, rendered obsolete the old style bicycles, which had one large and one small wheel.

It easily may be seen that the two ladies above were members of the younger generation—which was going to the dogs.

That's a strange thing about younger generations—they always are going to the dogs. Yet they never get there.

These young ladies would hop upon their speedy contraptions and startle the village by dashing past the general store.

They went so fast they didn't even have time to say to the group out front, "How's Willie's messies?" or "Is it hot enough for you?"

Sometimes they would slow down enough to say "Howdy," but most of the time they just waved as they rushed past on their way to perdition.

Pedestrians, accustomed to dodging only horses and buggies, feared for their lives when a "scorcher," approached.

The sound of the bells upon the handle bars disturbed the peace of the land. Folks couldn't sleep well nights. Sometimes the riders could be heard long after bedtime—eight or nine o'clock.

The world always is going to the dogs. Yet it never does arrive.

AMUSEMENTS

WALKER WHITESIDE AT STUDEBAKER THEATRE, CHICAGO

Walker Whiteside is now in his second month at the ever popular Studebaker Theatre in Chicago, where "The Arabian" is pleasing large and enthusiastic audiences at every performance.

In his fine, clean and amusing melodrama, "The Arabian" is eminently suited to the throngs of visitors to the Eucharistic Congress, the Elks and the Moose convention delegates.

Not only is his name a household word in all parts of America, but his plays have always been of the highest type; full of romance and heart interest, invariably witty and always thrilling in their intensity.

"The Arabian" is by far Walker Whiteside's biggest hit, for it permits him to appear in a dashing character, that of a famous bandit "Zantra," whose depredations have caused the British war office to send an armed force against him in the far-off Egyptian Desert.

How "Zantra" lures the caravan into his snare, and compels the doughty Colonel to accede to his own terms of peace, serve to make the plot of "The Arabian" one of exciting adventure.

There is the beautiful heroine who beards "Zantra" in his den in order to rescue her hero-lover, a handsome English officer.

Magnificent Arabs, clad in gorgeous costumes, stalk through the many colorful scenes. Silken swathed women of the far East soften the warlike atmosphere of "The Arabian," and the weird, quaint music of the sandy wastes lends an oriental feeling to the play, which has much to do with its huge success.

Miss Sydney Shields, one of the stage beauties of the day, heads the big cast of New York players to be found in Walter Whitesides support.

Miss Neleta Burd and Mildred Carney came home Friday evening from Mendota where they completed a four year course in high school.

Mervin Schoenholz and Morris Larson motored to Rochelle Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wagner of Rockford were over Sunday visitors here.

P. J. Schoenholz received word Friday of the death of James K. Inney, a cousin living at Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Thompson returned Friday after spending several days in Chicago visiting with relatives.

Mrs. Tirzah Bozeman and children are here from southern Virginia visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. Bozeman was formerly Tirzah Byrd of this vicinity.

A large attendance of members and friends were present at the Ladies Aid Thursday. Mrs. Durlin and Mrs. Rees were hostesses and a delicious luncheon was served.

A large audience was present Sunday morning at the Children's day exercises. An interesting program had been prepared which was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Yetter were in Rochelle Sunday.

The Willow Creek township farm bureau meeting was held at the Scarboro church Tuesday evening. After a brief program and special music by Rev. Johnson and wife of Paw Paw, a program was given which proved very interesting. The evening closed with a social hour at the conclusion of which refreshments were served.

CO. VETERINARIAN APPEALS TO DADS FOR COOPERATION

Says Tuberculin Tests Are Not Progressing As They Should.

Not only have many of the owners of tuberculin herds in Lee county failed to submit to the test provided by the county veterinarian, but the members of the Board of Supervisors have failed to cooperate with the veterinarian in the furtherance of this work and the elimination of bovine tuberculosis in the county, was the charge made by Dr. H. C. Barth of Amboy, County Veterinarian, before the board yesterday afternoon. When the remark was questioned, the county veterinarian replied that in many counties the members of the board of supervisors had taken an interest in eradicating the disease in their respective townships by canvassing the owners of herds and explaining to them the advantage of undergoing the test and then accompanying and assisting the bovine tuberculosis officer in carrying on this work.

Support Is Needed.
"The success of this work in Lee county depends solely and entirely upon the support which it is accorded," stated Dr. Barth. "A sick and diseased citizen cannot be as active and necessarily not as good a citizen as a healthy man will be. This is just as applicable to cattle as humans. I find and have found that there is much opposition to the work of eradication of bovine tuberculosis in Lee county. To date, there are about 1,250 herds in the county that are under supervision, or about 60 per cent of all cattle in the county. Over 30,000 head of cattle have been tested, with about 2,500 head taken out as reactors. In the eradication work that has been carried out in Lee county the past year, there has been about $100,000 spent." The veterinarian explained that this amount represented, largely indemnities paid for condemned cattle.

In response to questions put to him by members of the board, Dr. Barth said that the owners of herds which have already been tested do not comply with their agreements or the law covering the tuberculin test, and added that it was very difficult to enforce it.

Ample Funds to Pay.
"There again we are up against the lack of co-operation. There are certain rules, or a gentleman's agreement, which are not abided by after the herds have been tested. Probably the owner of the herd is not over proud when he finds that several head are infected and these are weeded out of the herd. To fight him makes the work of testing doubly hard as he is already an enemy to the western part of the county. This is in the dairy section in the vicinity of Dixon where the infection is at its worst. I attribute as the cause, the fact that the milk producing herds are in crowded quarters, often times hogs run with them and probably both are diseased.

"Some complaint has been made as to the appraisals in Lee county by those opposed to the test. I personally know that Lee county has secured appraisals just as high and probably higher than any other county in the state and these appraisals have been most satisfactory. Stories are widely circulated in opposition to the bovine tuberculin test and each time they are told they gain momentum. Co-milk which he did not sell to his patrons was run through the cream separator and the skimmed milk had been fed to these seven calves. It is my opinion that the disease was contracted by the calves through the drinking of milk which contained the germs.

60 Per Cent Tested
"I would estimate that there are about 2,000 herds in Lee county and of this number about 60 per cent have undergone the test. When the average comes up to 75 per cent, the law provides that the remaining 25 per cent may be compelled to submit to the test. It is my personal opinion that there are more tuberculin cattle in Lee county today than there were ten years ago and the dirtiest herds that I have found are in the north-

The Cumberland Falls, in Kentucky, constitute one of the most beautiful bits of scenery that affords. Accordingly, Governor William J. plan and becomes much more bitter.

There are ample funds available at this time for the paying of indemnities, in spite of widely circulated rumors that there was no money available. This is but another point that is raised against the plan of bovine tuberculin eradication.

"Not less than 41 per cent of the farms in Lee county are infected with bovine tuberculin and in this connection, I will cite the case of a Dixon milk dealer who only last week was selling milk from an infected herd. At the second test there were one reactor and last week we found seven calves infected with bovine tuberculin in his herd. ## SYNOPSIS

Betsy Terwilliger and Hal Chutney, in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests for movie tryouts, are depressed by the number of people seeking work. Old timers see a mysterious resemblance in Betsy to someone they cannot remember. Betsy meets Virginia Perry, established star, who is a girl, Hal finds himself as a bathing girl. That evening Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," takes Betsy for an auto ride, arousing Hal's jealous anger.

CHAPTER IX.

There was so noticeable a trace of coolness in Hal's manner the next morning when he met Betsy at the breakfast table that he whispered impulsively, almost tearfully:

"Why, Hal, what's wrong? You're a foolish boy to act as you do toward Mr. Marshall."

"He's no good, Betsy," blurted Hal in his honest, straightforward way. "I've been told so, and I can see it for myself."

Alas for Hal! His tactics were not the kind that are successful with women, who to be guided in the right direction must be driven in the wrong. Now she pouted.

"Goose!" He acted like a perfect gentleman every minute, and gave me lots of valuable suggestions. We didn't stay out an hour all told after leaving you. Just drove around a bit, and came right home, but you were locked in your room, and I didn't want to interrupt your writing."

Hal felt a twinge of contrition. "Oh, I guess it's all right, Betsy. If you think so. But I've heard and read so much about the goings-on of these movie people that I think a nice girl like you has to be on her guard every minute. It's different for a man like me—" Betsy flashed her eyes at him humorously, grateful for the relief in the tension.

Hal's reaction to custard pies was wooden.

"Oh, don't be so sure of your virtue, young sir. If Alma Lubens or some other of these movie vamps get to know you, I'll have a fine fight on my hands to hold your error—your friendship—for poor little me."

They both laughed at the preposterous thought that any such thing could ever come between them; and in a playful clasp of hands renewed and revealed their tender devotion. Soon thereafter they were on a bus, bound for the Amalgamated Lot and their second day of adventure.

Whatever the inherent efficacy of the advice Marshall had given Betsy, and however deep and moving the resolve of Hal to do better and make good for Betsy's sake, when confronted with the bald realities of another day's trials they fared no better than on the first.

Hal, cast toward noon in a comedy to replace a "bit" man taken ill, proved wooden in his reaction to custard pies buried in his face by an irate customer of the restaurant in a scene in which he played a waiter. The director, after a patient hour of coaching and the using up of all the available custard pies, decided to call it a day and await the securing, on the morrow, of an experienced super.

Betsy, stumbling stiffly through a scene as maid to a star, had the searing humiliation of hearing herself called "pretty but dumb," when in truth she was but frightened.

Here, too, directorial patience could not discount inexperience, lack of genuine pantomimic talent, and the painful self-consciousness of one not born with the ego that must needs be a part of the mental equipment of every actor and actress.

The director surrendered to the obvious after a while, but something was about the earnestness of this efflike little beauty restrained the usual directorial cascade of withering adjectives; he called Betsy to him and dismissed her as quietly and kindly as it is possible to do such a thing on a set crammed with gaping, knowing people. "I'm afraid you're hopeless," he declared, which, in Hollywoodese, was gentle enough.

"Oh, dear," sobbed Betsy, unstrung and shaking. "I've tried so hard, and I do so mean to make good."

"My dear girl, ambition and sincerity are but two minor qualities of the many that go to make for moving picture success. It's just the same in other lines of work. A stenographer might be very ambitious and work long and hard, but unless she has talent, and a personality endowed by Nature with peculiar fitness for that particular thing, she will never become secretary to the president of the company. And no salesgirl, however ambitious, will become buyer without talent, plus long, hard apprenticeship. In the movies the appearances of talent are more evident and direct, the reactions quicker, so that apprenticeships here don't have to be so long—provided one has the essential, intangible something required."

He knew something of Betsy's history, having been apprised by Cameron that she was a contest winner; so when he saw the tears of bitter disappointment scalding her eyes, he grew soft-hearted and said kindly, despite his better judgment:

"Of course, I'm not passing final word on you, little girl. It's perhaps too early to tell in your case. But, in this picture, I haven't any more time to spend coaching. Lord, the office is after me now on account of overhead. I've lost so much time for cheering her up—got to shoot fast, and to do that I've got to have people who are trained—on whom I can grind without wasting much time rehearsing. I'm sorry, Miss."

There was nothing left for Betsy to do but walk the path of humiliation before all the staring, grinning, whispering extras, off the set and back to her dressing room.

Clare found her there, crying, and tried to cheer her up—with offers to coach her, with glib predictions that each succeeding effort would be less and less difficult. But somehow Betsy sensed the lack of a ring of sincerity in Clare's talk, which was nine parts friendliness and one part conviction.

CHAPTER X.

The experiences of those first and second days were repeated monotonously times without end in the many days that followed.

Hal's aggressive approach made it a far more intricate problem for the studio experts to discover whether or not he possessed the fundamental qualification of real talent underneath his willingness to work hard, his good-natured earnestness, his exceeding ambition. Bit by bit he began to acquire a certain skill in the sort of little things into which he was cast: a soldier, college boy, gangster, all the exaggerated gamut of types that is played on the cinema emotional scales. Hal was good-looking and could wear clothes passably well; and the work for male extras, on the average, in the Studio lots is less personalized, less positive, than that for female supers.

But never again did any director cast Hal in a part which required the doing of a horse!

Betsy, lacking Hal's ready adaptability, was too shy by far to intrude or project herself with confidence into the work. Her primary experiences had left an indelible mark upon the spirit of her attitude; in brief, she had developed a persistent case of stage fright, or "camera consciousness." More than once she rehearsed a part completely enough to arouse faint hope in the director. But the instant she heard the assistant call "Lights!" and the great blue flood of brilliance from the Kleigs gave her the sensation of being apart and magnified on an island of limelight, she grew nervous. The yell "Camera!" and the immediate whirling sound of the inexorably grinding black box, which she knew was recording with savage prominence every fleeting expression, every slightest, merest gesture, caused hope and courage to flee from her as air from a lightning struck balloon. That "grind...grind...grind..." like a sputter from the lips of a monstrous god, was the saw that pricked her bubble of increasing confidence. Clare told her that many oldtimers often suffered from this camera consciousness.

So it went; Hal's star and stock remaining on an indifferent level, and Betsy's steadily declining. However, as the days passed and her circle of acquaintances widened, more and more people remarked upon her mysterious resemblance to someone whose name they always had "on the tip of their tongues"—but couldn't quite place.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home of their own shortly after their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer, lands a new contract.

Previous chapters told how John, a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom PAT FORBES, one of John's best friends, hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

DR. DICK MENEFF married MARGARET WAYNE, and John is best man. Margaret's younger sister, CLARA, runs away and marries CLIFTON LANE, whom John cordially dislikes.

A party is given by NOEL and VERA BOYD, and Vera shows an interest in John which he does not return, but which arouses Fay's jealousy. Noel Boyd later hosts in John's presence, of an arrangement between him and his wife Vera whereby each is left free by the other to do as he pleases.

Fay and the baby go to Washington to visit Fay's people, and John knocks around with Pat Forbes, whose wife also is away.

John gets a phone call one morning from DOROTHY FRANCIS, a girl he used to know in his college days and who is in town with a musical comedy. She says she wants to see him and he makes a dinner engagement with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXVII

JOHN spent a luxurious hour in the barber's chair, and at six o'clock he was calling up Miss Francis on the hotel telephone.

She received him in her room which struck him as a rather daring informality, but her manner was so assured as to make him think that, after all, she must have received dozens of other men under the same circumstances—newspaper men, perhaps.

She had yellow hair, and her high arched eyebrows and long lashes framed startling green eyes. "I wanted," she began when they had exchanged brief reminiscences, "to discuss theatrical publicity with you. You see, I remember that even as a student at college you had some splendid ideas on the subject. Remember your own adventures in student dramatics?"

John did. He remembered, also, that when Dorothy had left the little college town to go on the stage she had taken several press clippings of his own devising along with her.

"You know," she said, "there were such good ideas in those notices you wrote for me that I've used them extensively in my publicity for several years. But papers get tired of the same old stuff, so I'll have to think of something new. If you can work out something for me, I'll be glad to pay you. You're far cleverer, you know, than the ordinary run of theatrical press agents."

"You're flattering me, I'm sure. As for pay—behave yourself and let's go out to eat."

"I have to be in the theater at quarter to eight," she reminded him. "That's all right. We're neither of us so hungry that we can't eat all we want in an hour and a half."

He took her to Rainbow Gardens, where there was dancing. The head waiter, with a quick, appraising look at Miss Francis' expensive dress, bowed unusually low and picked out a most conveniently located table.

John said carelessly, "I'll leave you to it."

Mrs. Theo. Fitzpatrick who was operated on the latter part of the week at the Amboy hospital is not getting along very well at this writing. Her sister Miss Bernadette McKune of Walton is taking her place at home.

"You've splendid taste, old man. Who was she?"

the "ordering to you, Louis," and thrust a bill into his hand.

"Something light for me, please," put in Miss Francis, and the waiter bowed again. "Yes, madam."

The orchestra was playing, and John, pushing back his chair, said, "Let's see, the last time you and I danced together was at one of the Junior Proms, wasn't it? It's been entirely too long to wait."

She laughed. "You always were original about asking for a dance. All right," she rose.

"Tell me," he said as he took her arm, "how you've come along. I've seen your name in the papers once in a while. How do you like it?"

"I like it tremendously. I don't think I could be happy off the stage."

"No," he agreed, "I don't believe you could. There are certain people you know, who are born to it. You're one of them. Now that you are leading lady in a musical show, what's the next step?"

"Why, don't you know? How can I ask advice of a man who needs to be told that the secret yearning of every musical comedy maid is the drama?"

"Forgive my ignorance," she laughed. "Still, I can't see why it should be. Why should musical comedy be forced to lose you?"

"Ego, my dear," she smiled. "The secret hope of all of us is to do something serious that will bring the critics to their knees."

"You women!" he exclaimed softly. "Adventurers, all of you."

"Looking for new worlds to conquer," he answered, and was about to say something more when he spied a familiar face smiling at him. It was Pat Forbes and John, to his intense disgust, saw he was dancing with his friend, Cora.

From the violent jerkings of Forbes' head, John gathered that Pat was inviting him over to his table. He nodded, to let Pat know he understood, and the music stopped, almost before he had begun to realize that he was dancing.

"My problem," Dorothy began turning at once to the business at hand, "is to devise some means of launching me in the serious drama," and she plunged into a discussion of her experiences and her hopes and of vague plans for realizing her ambition.

John was a little disappointed at the businesslike trend of the conversation. Secretly, he had hoped there would be opportunity for a mild flirtation, for it wasn't every day that one encountered as striking a looking girl as Dorothy Francis. He tried it, directing a few flattering pleasantries at her, but she parried them skillfully, and he realized that there was a girl who worshiped only one god—success. A girl diplomatic enough, it was true, to realize the importance of graciousness to men who could help her but who, he was convinced, would push any others out of her path.

In other words, he thought, she was the same old Dorothy Francis who used to accept from among her many invitations to college social events the one that would do her most good to accept. . . . With a rueful smile John remembered that he had succeeded in landing her for two Junior Proms, but at the first he had been from committee chair man and at the last he had been enjoying a mild furor of popularity due to his prominence in student dramatics and journalism.

Diplomatically, but determinedly, she forced the conversation into her own channel.

"Have you spoken to any producers about your ambitions?" John asked her.

"Oh, I've sent out a feeler now and then, but the best way is to make them come to you. Now, if I had sufficient publicity, they'd all be after me and they wouldn't think any part too difficult for me. I need something like that, or somebody to write a play for me. I'm afraid if I wait for the producers to discover the genius that burns in me I'll wait a long time. I'm afraid I'll have to force their hands."

John laughed. "You will, never fear
